ABOUT THE AZRIELI MUSIC PRIZES

Established in 2014, the Azrieli Music Prizes (AMP) offer opportunities for the discovery, creation, performance and celebration of excellence in music composition.

The Azrieli Prize for Jewish Music is awarded to a composer who has written the best new undiscovered work of Jewish music. Eligible works may have been premiered within seventy-five (75) years of the award date, but must not have a significant performance history, and must not have been commercially recorded.

The Azrieli Commission for Jewish Music is awarded to encourage composers to creatively and critically engage with the question “What is Jewish music?”. This prize is given to the composer who proposes a response to this question in the shape of a new musical work that displays the utmost creativity, artistry, technical mastery and professional expertise.

The Azrieli Commission for Canadian Music is offered to a Canadian composer to create a new musical work that creatively and critically engages with the complexities of composing concert music in Canada today. The prize is given to the composer who proposes a response to this challenge that displays the utmost creativity, artistry, technical mastery and professional expertise.

ABOUT THE PERFORMANCE FUND

The Azrieli Music Prizes Performance Fund (AMP-PF) supports professional music ensembles from around the world in preparing and presenting excellent public performances of AMP-winning works.

Ensembles may request support in amounts between $5,000 CAD and $25,000 CAD to help cover the costs of: score and parts rental; soloist fees; additional rehearsal time to prepare the AMP-winning works; augmented concert promotions; and attendance of AMP Laureates at the rehearsals and the concert of their winning work. AMP-PF Funds are allocated on an annual basis to deserving music ensembles through a competitive selection process.

SOME CONSIDERATIONS FOR A SUCCESSFUL SUBMISSION

In addition to the guidelines and requirements stated above, The Azrieli Music Prizes Advisory Council has provided the following notes to help applicants shape a more successful submission:

1. Don't worry about how 'Jewish' or 'Canadian' your programming is or is not. One of AMP's objective is to generate productive intercultural understandings through a rich consideration of what Jewish and Canadian music is and can be.
2. A successful proposal must be conceptually and musically balanced. Strong, wonderful musical examples accompanied by an insubstantial and/or ill-conceived concert proposal will not succeed within the competition. The inverse is also true: a strong concert proposal will not compensate for weak musical examples. The two must go hand-in-hand.
3. It is preferred that AMP-winning works be programmed alongside other works from the 20th and 21st Century concert repertoire. That said, compelling proposals for programming alongside earlier works will be considered.
4. Please note that the quality of the supporting documents greatly affects the ability to evaluate a proposal. Please ensure that submitted recordings are as clear and undistorted as possible and that printed materials are clean and legible. If the reproduction quality is so low that it is difficult to ascertain the product, then this will impact the Council's evaluation.
5. Please be certain that submitted written materials and musical examples demonstrate your ensemble's ability to undertake the rehearsals and concert for one, or more, of the AMP-winning works to world class industry standards. The Foundation seeks to support ensembles that will showcase these works at the same level of excellence we expect of our AMP Laureate composers.

REVIEW PROCESS AND CRITERIA

Once received, proposals are registered and screened by Foundation staff for eligibility and completeness. The proposals that pass this screening are delivered to the AMP Advisory Council as qualified submissions.

The Council will evaluate qualified submissions for their fit and relevancy to the objectives of AMP and the purpose of the Performance Fund. The Council will review and grade the submissions using the following three main criteria: Artistic Merit, Thematic Fit and Capacity. These criteria are separately weighted based on their level of importance to arrive at a score out of 100 for each evaluated submission.

Artistic Merit (50 points)

This is the most important criteria the Council applies in evaluating each submission. It is directly tied to the ensemble's proven ability to program and perform new concert music at the highest artistic standards. The Council will determine:

- the level of creativity and distinctiveness displayed in the ensemble's programming;
- the ensemble's capacity to generate high-quality professional performances; and
- the ability of the submitted musical examples to sustain a listener's attention over their entire length.

Thematic Fit (30 points)

The Council will evaluate whether the qualified submission:

- proposes a relevant thematic fit to the objectives of the Azrieli Music Prizes;
- presents one or more of the AMP-winning works in the best way imaginable, in accordance with world class professional standards;
- offers an authentic expression of the ensemble's current and past programming; and
- produces productive intercultural understandings through a rich consideration of what Jewish and Canadian music is and can be.

Capacity (20 points)

The Council will evaluate the qualified submissions for the ensembles' ability to execute their concert projects as proposed.

Can the proposal be realistically and successfully achieved? Does the ensemble demonstrate enough previous experience to assure the Council that it will deliver on its proposal on time and on budget? Has the ensemble's leadership allocated adequate resources to meet the expected standard of achievement?

Those proposals for which the Council can answer these questions in the affirmative will advance in the competition.

NOTIFICATION

The AMP Advisory Council anticipates making decisions concerning which ensembles/proposals will receive AMP-PF support approximately two months after the deadlines (i.e. by late August 2022). Successful applicants will be notified by Foundation staff via email with an AMP-PF funding agreement to follow in writing 3-4 weeks later. All other applicants will receive a notification letter along the same timeline.

The decisions of the AMP Advisory Council regarding the Performance Fund are final and non-negotiable. There is no appeal process.

FEEDBACK

The Council does welcome feedback on how to improve the AMP-PF application, evaluation, notification and implementation process. Feedback may be sent by email to music@azrielfoundation.org with the subject line "AMP-PF Feedback" or by post to:
